

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At the state armory Friday evening, the first annual military ball of the service was held. The affair was a most successful one and the most delightful of the social events of the season and brought dancers together from many towns in this section.

The ball drill was very pretty and decorated with flags and special arrangements of national colors. Uniforms of officers and enlisted men gave a military touch to the affair. Music was by the military orchestra of Worcester.

The entertainment committee of the ball, G. R. Carr, Emile J. Mounier and George Gates were in charge of the arrangements.

There were twenty numbers on the dance order which opened with a grand march. Refreshments were served at intermission.

More than a score of thermometers from which reports were received recorded 10 degrees below zero in Danielson, early Friday morning, when others more reckless in telling what the temperature was showed 13, 12 and even 14 below. In any event, the morning was really the coldest of the season, and all of those who were out early on their way to work—nearly an hour earlier than formerly, by the way—will readily attest some of the weather whippersnappers predicted that the cold spell that set in Thursday will be the last of real severity this winter, and pointed out that March is only ten days ahead.

Friday morning the funeral of Maxine Guigere, who died at Norwich, was held from the home of her brother, Joseph Guigere, 272 State street. The high mass was read at St. James' church at 9 o'clock and was sung by Rev. Joseph Mounier, M. S. The bearers were Louis Guigere, Adolph Guigere, Joseph Guigere, Adolph Guigere, Charles Robideau and Homer Lohme. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Holy Cross cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

John B. Bassett of Broad street won first honors in the whist tournament that was just concluded at the Bolander club after six weeks of play and Arthur Bassett won second honors. In the pool tournament, the final contest between Frank A. Kennedy and Howard Dixon Mr. Kennedy was the victor. Woods or chess played during the evening and refreshments were served.

Two events in which members of the service battery here are interested are scheduled for the early part of next week—a drill and pay night—the drill will be held at the armory on Monday evening and an inspection by Colonel M. B. Payne and Colonel Eastman, both of New London, Tuesday evening. The public will be invited to attend the inspection on Tuesday evening.

Buyers of men's clothing have a very pleasant surprise coming to them, in the shape of advanced line for spring that are being shown here are priced almost as low as the pre-war basis, and in many cases called upon to pay any where from $50 to $70 for a suit of good material and some style a man will be able to own a very good spring suit at prices varying from $27 to $35 these suits really superior to war-time suits that sold for as much as $50.

Persons who have any interest, as taxpayers, in the matter of having the low tax on transportation of passengers reduced, will find the high school from villages in the outlying sections of the town will have their opportunity this (Saturday) morning to tell the town school committee at its meeting to be held in town hall at 1 o'clock just what they think about the proposition, which is really an important one and deserving of attention.

An effort is being made by automobile dealers in town of this section of the Connecticut to arrive at some agreement under which each of any given make shall have a fixed trade value when turned in toward the price of a new machine. Dealers who are promoting the plan say that their experience of the past have taught them that they are losers in the long run when they allow from $100 to $150 and then a used car to be sold for $100 to $150. It is possible for him to get in the past he has had about twenty cars in search of the best trade. Many times he has obtained it, and eventually the dealer who has taken it off his lot.

PUTNAM

Friday the average citizen of Putnam was anxious for an interview with the weather prophet who, predicted, two weeks ago, that the backbone of winter was broken. When the mercury made its record low mark of the winter Friday morning it was hard to convince anyone that winter's backbone was even minutely dented.

On scores of thermometers about the city the reading was 10 below zero between 8 and 7 a. m. while reports of 12, 14 and 15 below were not uncommon from the low-lying sections of the city. In the Manhasset village several thermometers showed 14 below. It was 15 below at Putnam and 17 below in sections of the town of Woodstock. Such extreme low temperature are rarely recorded in this section of New England, and they were the topic of much comment during the day. Friday, after 11 a. m. was not an exceedingly cold day and in sunny places sidewalks were rapidly being cleared of snow and ice and steaming under the sun's rays.

The average temperature in the city seemed to be 10 or 11 degrees below zero, although some instruments in some sections showed the lower readings noted.

Joseph Dumas has paid into the city court a total of $420.89 an assessment levied against him on charges of reputation and keeping with intent to sell, through counsel, but the assessment was overruled and he refused to plead, whereupon fines of $200 on each count and costs were assessed by Judge M. H. Geiseler.

Dumas is the proprietor of a soft drink emporium in what formerly was Frank Bennett's saloon in the Dumas building at the corner of Church and Providence streets. His appearance in court was due to activities of state police who came here and visited his place sometime ago.

Two other cases—against Americans Sebastiano and Amedeo Zaniagni—have been disposed of by the city court. A small quantity of wine was seized at their places and the claim made by the accused that it was for their own use. Both demurred to the complaints against them, the demurrers being overruled, and they refused to plead a fine of $25 and costs was imposed in each case. Sebastiano and Zaniagni were represented by Attorney Arthur S. MacDonald as counsel.

The three cases herein mentioned were taken up at a session of the city court unexpectedly called for Thursday afternoon.

It was suggested Friday that the private sewing machine company, which is now in what is being represented in this territory as marvelous opportunities for him and quick returns should carefully investigate the standing of the companies or organizations in which they are asked to place their money, before putting up with it. At present reports are being heard of some concerns whose strength as sewing machine companies is being questioned. Until such reports are obtained as the standing of the concerns established as good, investors are being warned to hold onto their money.

Kid Lee of Worcester and James McKenna, member of the council, will furnish the features of the entertainment at the Wednesday evening, Worcester's winter festival, when members of Carroll county, N. C., are to have a stage party of their people. In addition to the McKenna affair there will be other boxing events.

The first of what are termed the mid-season dances was held Friday evening by the Sixth Form at Putnam school. The affair was a most successful one and the dancing was held in the gymnasium. In addition to the dance, there were some other features. The dining room in the main house at the school, decorated with banners representing all the major schools and villages, while above the patronesses table a 1922 banner is suspended. Red and black streamers festooned across the ceiling and seats were arranged to blend with the general color scheme of the decorations. In the corners of the room and in the hallway first class are in place.

Dancing Friday evening was from 8 to 12, with an hour's intermission at midnight for supper, dancing being resumed at 1 a. m. Blue leather vanity cases were the favors for the girls and baskets for the boys. Paper hats, white whistles and canes were used to add novelty to the costume. Music was by Bert Lee's orchestra, of Boston.

There were several chimney fires in this territory Friday as the direct result of forcing fire on account of the extreme cold weather. In some of these fires in outlying sections, neighborhood houses came together to put them out.

Major A. D. McIntyre is in town over the week end but will leave again Monday on another long business trip that will take him through West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Major McIntyre, who has just attended a coast manufacturers' banquet in New York, says his business is keeping up splendidly. Included in this territory is the now famous Logan territory of West Virginia. Major McIntyre is familiar with the territory where he has been living for a long time and has much first hand information relative to the many and serious disorders that have occurred in that section.

A recent session worked out the following plan for the reimbursing of the numerous farmers in Windham county who are withholding their milk from the Whiting Company of Boston:

First—All members of the N. E. M. P. A. other than the Whiting producers will be asked immediately to assign in legal form seven-and-one-half per cent. of their receipts for milk during the months of January, February and March, to a trust fund for the benefit of the Whiting producers.

Second—The Legal Department of the N. E. M. P. A. will protect the rights of the Whiting producers in connection with the payment of milk during the month of January. Full market value of products shipped for the first three weeks will be obtained.

Third—The first step in the perfection of a mutual or pooling system of marketing the dairy products in New England has been taken by the appointment of the following men as a committee to work out a plan to be submitted to the voting members of the N. E. M. P. A. at the earliest possible moment:

Senator C. E. Hough, Hartford, Conn., manager of the Connecticut Milk Producers' Association, member of the Connecticut state senate, prominent Holstein breeder and dairyman.

This committee will meet and organize its work immediately. It is expected to make a wide range of experience ability, knowledge of the subject matter
